

Self-Development Plan

Lead Self Domain Assignment

Element	How to complete	Example
Goal statement	What is my goal? Ensure it is SMART. What is my motivation? What values of mine are at play in this goal? What evidence do I need to have to demonstrate success to myself?	I want to become physically fit by working with a personal trainer three times a week for the next year.
Influences	Who or what influences my goal? What people and resources may help me with my goal? What might get in the way of success?	I have a friend from work who is passionate about fitness and wellbeing. I can ask her for support and suggestions regarding my nutrition. I am very busy at work and with family, it will be hard to schedule and commit to going to the gym regularly.
Conditions	What will ensure success? What strengths do I have to achieve my goal? How will I use them? How will I know when I have succeeded? "I know I will be successful when..."	I am curious, hardworking, and good with routines. I know I will be successful when I can confidently workout for an hour and still function productively for the rest of the day.
Short-term goals	What are my short-term goals? What steps, processes, learning or experiences do I need to achieve my goal? Include a minimum of three short-term goals. Keep in mind short-term goals should also be SMART.	My three milestone goals are: I will run 5km in under 30 minutes in the next three months. I will do 25 push-ups without taking a break within six months. I will control my cravings and eat healthily on a regular basis by cooking rather than eating out and avoiding the junk food aisle at the grocery store.
Success	What will I do when I see progress towards my goal? How might I celebrate the advancement of my goal? What will I do once I have achieved my goal? What did I learn about my ability to lead myself through this accountability process?	I will celebrate my progress by registering for a 5km race. I confirmed that I am good with routines and once I placed importance on working out and living a healthier life, I could do so. I also learned that stress makes me want to skip my routine but working out is an excellent way to manage stress.
